

New Can-Do Statements for Intercultural Communication

Description: How can teachers help students develop their cultural knowledge and communication skills while maintaining use of the target language? This summer the newly created Can-Do Statements for Intercultural Communication and the newly updated Can-Do Statements for Language will be published by NCSSFL-ACTFL. Explore these new Can-Do statements and how they provide a framework for goal setting, lesson building and student reflection. Self-assess your own intercultural competence in English and in a target language and reflect on how you integrate cultural opportunities for your learners. Then, use the new Can-Do Statements to create sample cultural lessons, actives and reflections in the target language, aligned to your learners' proficiency level.
